Meet the local organisers

Tomáš Karásek

Dear Colleagues

Vítejte v Praze. Vítejte na Univerzitě Karlově. Welcome to Prague. Welcome to Charles University. It is our honour to host the 10th General Conference, so rich in its academic and social programme. Immerse yourself in the fascinating Papers – but don't forget to look around you and enjoy the 'City of a Hundred Spires'.

The plenary session will be held at the magnificent Municipal Hall, one of Prague's Art Nouveau gems. At the reception following Rogers Brubaker's keynote address, you can admire paintings by Alphonse Mucha, Max Švabinský and many others.

At some point during the conference, do also explore the photo exhibition in the Social Science building about the 1989 Velvet Revolution.

This conference takes place around a significant anniversary for Central Europe. A quarter of a century ago, countries including Czechoslovakia, Poland, Hungary and East Germany held their first democratic elections. But how democratic are these countries today? What happened to their 'return to Europe', a buzzphrase of the first post-communist decade? Is the adjective post-communist even relevant in 2016? These questions will be debated in the Roundtable Still Post-Communist? Central Europe a Quarter of a Century after the First Free Elections, one of two brought to you by us at Charles University's Institute of Political Studies.

We hope you will also join us for the Roundtable Under Pressure: International Institutions and the Global Power Shifts, which discusses problems of global governance and the ability of states to cooperate within major intergovernmental institutions. Can these institutions handle the power changes we have seen in the recent past? Will they become more representative of the best interests of humankind? Or will they turn into talking shops, stuck in endless quarrels? The answers to these questions will characterise politics in the twenty-first century.

Servicing undergraduate, graduate and doctoral studies in political science, international relations and security studies, the Institute of Political Studies (which also encompasses the Department of Security Studies and the Centre for Security Policy) is a research hub that brings together established academics, young postdocs and emerging scholars. Our English-language degree programmes and postdoctoral positions for non-Czech academics ensure that our Institute is fully international.

Our faculty, founded in 1990, is the second newest addition to Charles University. It soon became a regional centre of teaching and research in area studies, economics, international studies, journalism, media studies, sociology, and, of course, political science. One of the many leading figures who taught at the Faculty was the first post-communist President of Czechoslovakia and first President of the Czech Republic, Václav Havel.

We wish you a successful conference, an enjoyable stay, and many happy returns to Prague, and to Charles University.

...and academic convenors

Dear colleague

On behalf of the ECPR, we would like to welcome you to its 10th General Conference, which this year features 67 Sections, 468 Panels and more than 2,000 Papers. The varied programme includes Roundtables, Receptions, Featured Panels, and a Plenary lecture by acclaimed sociologist Rogers Brubaker on the subject of Religious Dimensions of Political Conflict and Violence.

The General Conference, now held annually, has established itself as the largest regular event for European political science, with more than 2,000 participants and steadily growing submissions for Sections, Panels and Papers. Calls for next year's conference, at the University of Oslo, go out on 15 September.

We are very grateful to all those involved in the organisation of this event. Our special thanks to the Section Chairs, the local organisers, and to ECPR Central Services.

We wish you all a great conference!

Klaus Goetz

Maurizio Carbone
University of Glasgow
*Members of the ECPR
Executive Committee*

Klaus Goetz (above) holds the Chair in Political Systems and European Integration at the University of Munich. He previously taught at LSE and at the University of Potsdam.

He has held Visiting Professorships at Humboldt University Berlin, the University of Tokyo, the Institute of Advanced Studies Vienna, Hebrew University Jerusalem, and Sciences Po Bordeaux, and he was a Fernand Braudel Fellow at the EUI.

Professor Goetz's work focuses on comparative politics and public policy, with a special interest in the analysis of political time. He is currently engaged in two major research projects, both funded by the German Research Foundation, that examine the effects of staggered membership renewal in upper chambers; and the timescapes of international administrations (see www.politicaltime.eu). He recently co-edited (with M. Howlett) a special issue of the International Review of Administrative Sciences on time and public policy.

He was local organiser of the 2009 ECPR General Conference in Potsdam and has been co-editor of the journal West European Politics (Taylor & Francis) since 2000.

Maurizio Carbone (right) is Professor of International Relations & Development and Jean Monnet Professor of EU External Policies at the University of Glasgow.

He has taught previously at the University of Pittsburgh, Carnegie Mellon University, Duke University, Johns Hopkins Bologna, University of Rome Tor Vergata, and has held official visiting research positions at the Université Libre de Bruxelles, University of Canterbury in New Zealand, European University Institute, University of Cambridge, Sciences Po Paris, University of Cologne, and University of Bologna.

Professor Carbone's research is related mainly to EU external relations, particularly foreign aid and other development-related policies. He is also interested in European integration, international development, and Italy's role in the international arena. He was local organiser of the 2014 ECPR General Conference in Glasgow and is a founding editor of the journal Contemporary Italian Politics (Taylor & Francis).

The Aula Magna in the Carolinum. The huge tapestry incorporates motifs from the oldest Charles University seal in its centre, as well as excerpts from the Foundation Charter of 1348 and the symbols of the four original faculties.

Charles University in Prague

Founded in 1348, Charles University belongs among the oldest in the world, yet it is also renowned as a modern, dynamic, institution

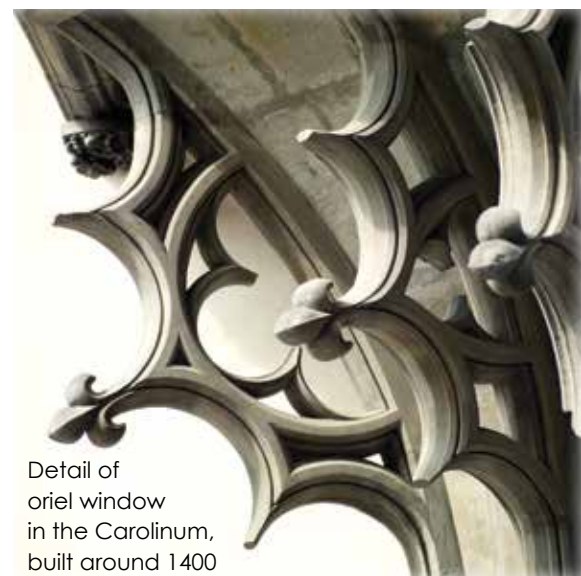

The modern entrance to the Carolinum, a national cultural monument and the main seat of Charles University. It has been owned by the University since 1383.

Modelled on universities in Bologna and Paris, and originally with four faculties – theology, liberal arts, law, and medicine – Charles University achieved international renown within a very short time. It has played a pivotal role in Czech history, and is connected to key historical events, including the Reformation, the seventeenth-century anti-Habsburg movement, and the First Czechoslovak Republic.

The University regularly tops the ranks of scholarly institutions in Central and Eastern Europe. Shanghai University's Academic Ranking, for example, places Charles University among the world's top 2%.

Today, the University has 17 faculties at which more than 50,000 students are enrolled across three institutes, six centres of teaching, research, development and other creative activities, and a centre providing information services. The Faculty of Social Sciences was founded in 1990, playing a leading role in restoring social sciences studies.

The city of Prague

One of Europe's best preserved cultural centres, Prague is often referred to as The City of a Hundred Spires or The Paris of the East

Its uniquely preserved historical centre, a UNESCO World Heritage Site since 1992, reflects eleven centuries of history.

Visitors from around the world are drawn to Prague by its unique symbiosis of carefully preserved monuments of all periods and styles, from Romanesque rotundas, Gothic cathedrals and Baroque churches, Renaissance palaces and gardens, to Art Nouveau, Cubist and purely modern buildings.

The skyline is dominated by Prague Castle towering above the Vltava River, which in turn reflects the city's landmarks, towers, church domes, palaces and houses, garden greenery and islands.

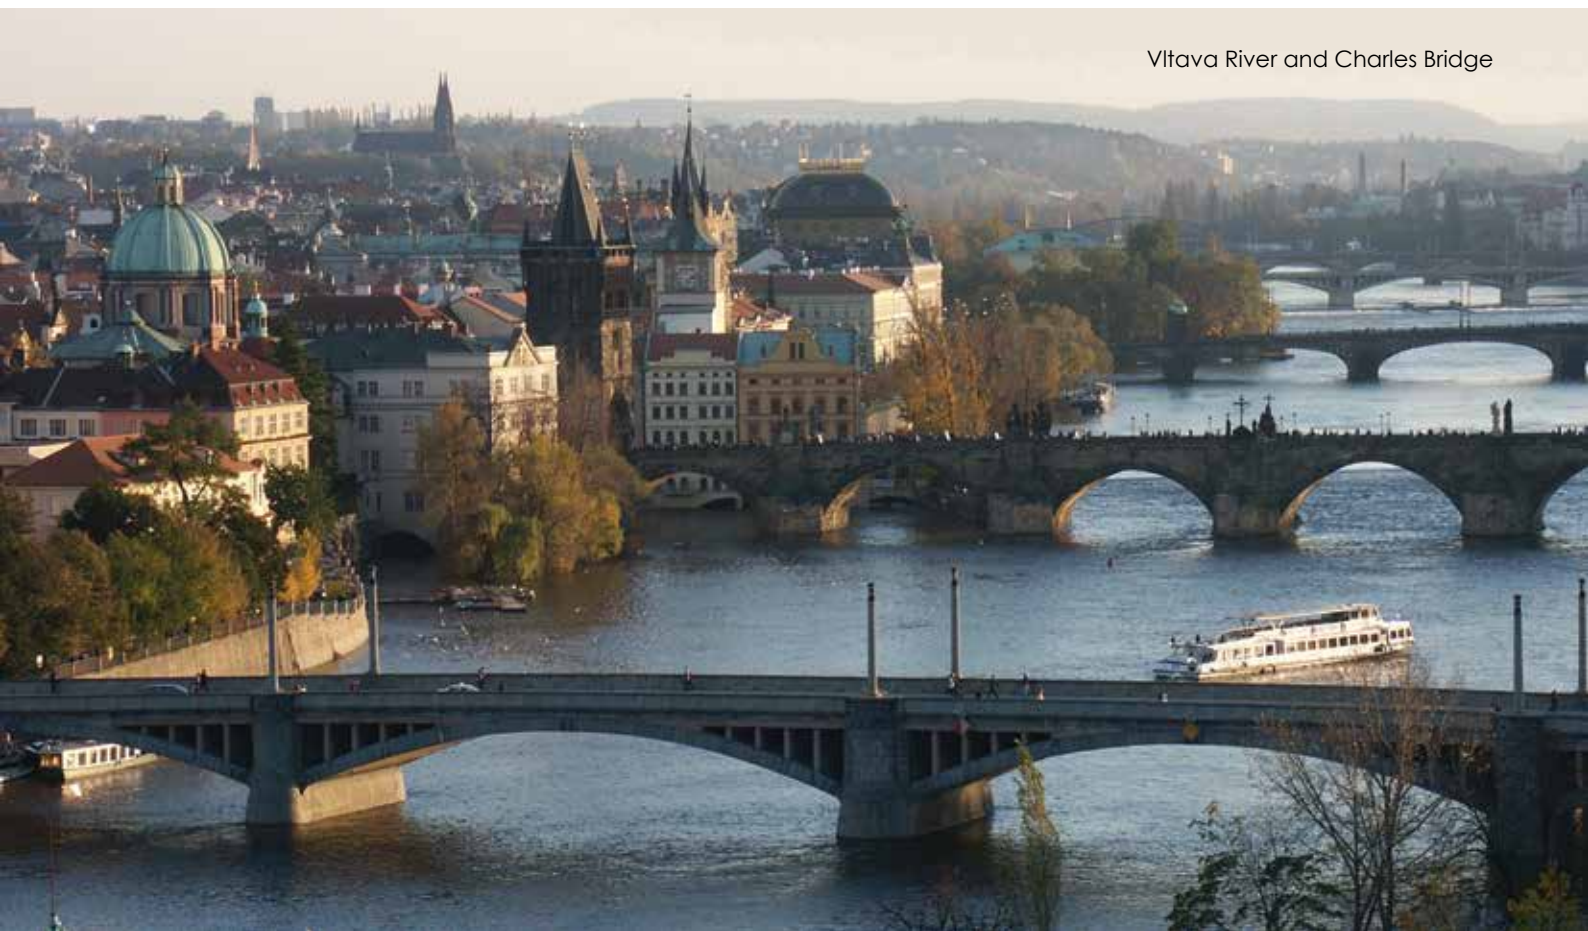

Old Town Square

Today, Prague is the capital and largest conurbation of the Czech Republic. Situated in the north-west of the country, it is home to about 1.26 million people. It's a city of music and art, a city of gardens and parks, and a city where the best beer in the world is brewed and savoured.

The European Consortium for Political Research

An independent scholarly association that supports the training, research and cross-national co-operation of political scientists

Events

Each year, the ECPR organises the Joint Sessions of Workshops, Summer and Winter Schools in Methods and Techniques, and the General Conference. A Graduate Student Conference is held every other year.

Publishing

We have our own imprint, ECPR Press, publishing high-quality Monographs and collections of Essays, along with a small selection of out-of-print Classics that have made a significant contribution to political studies scholarship. Our imprint also includes a highly respected series of multi-authored edited volumes, Studies in European Political Science, many of which have developed from workshops at the ECPR's Joint Sessions and Research Sessions.

ECPR also co-publishes three leading journals: European Political Science with Palgrave Macmillan, European Journal of Political Research with Wiley-Blackwell and European Political Science Review with Cambridge University Press. We also publish the high-profile book series Comparative Politics with Oxford University Press.

Standing Groups and Research Networks

These are groups of researchers, in many cases formed at ECPR events, with a shared scholarly interest. Some are small, maintaining only a website and mailing list; some organise major conferences and summer schools, and produce their own publications.

There are currently over 50 Standing Groups, covering many sub-fields of the discipline. All are eligible to apply for grants to help with the organisation of the Group, and with the running of summer schools.

Prizes

Each year, the ECPR marks its members' achievements by awarding a number of prizes. These prizes cover the spectrum of a scholar's career, from the Jean Blondel PhD Prize to the Lifetime Achievement Award.

Membership

ECPR membership is institutional and currently comprises some 349 universities concerned with the teaching and research of political science.

While membership is paid by the university, it is the individuals within it who receive the benefit; from Master's and PhD students, through to the most senior professor.

Plenary lecture

How should we understand the religious dimensions of political conflict? Rogers Brubaker identifies violence-enabling mechanisms

Religious dimensions of political conflict and violence

This lecture highlights the distinctiveness of religiously driven political conflict and highlights the ways in which many conflicts involving religiously identified claimants are similar to conflicts involving other culturally or ethnically defined claimants.

Brubaker identifies the religious stakes of political conflicts informed by religious understandings of right order. He specifies six violence-enabling modalities and mechanisms – none uniquely religious – yet religious beliefs, structures and processes make up an important and distinctively rich matrix.

Rogers Brubaker is Professor of Sociology and Foundation Chair at UCLA. He has written widely on social theory, immigration, nationalism, ethnicity, and religion.

Alexander Schmotz

in political science, or offers an innovative approach to teaching and learning in the discipline. All EPS articles except reviews and keynotes are eligible for consideration.

Our 2015 winner is Alexander Schmotz (King's College London) for his article Vulnerability and Compensation: Constructing an Index of Co-Optation in Autocratic Regimes (Vol 14, pp439–457).

The prize committee was chaired by Drude Dahlerup (University of Stockholm) and also comprised James Newell (University of Salford) and Gianfranco Pasquino (University of Bologna). The committee remarked that Schmotz's article 'goes beyond the usual limited institutional focus' and 'is innovative, theoretically sound, and very impressive.'

About the journal

EPS is an international journal by and for the political science community.

EPS publishes pieces on how the discipline is, can be, and ought to be, and addresses issues covering research, the profession, teaching, training and relations between academia and the wider community.

This £500 prize, generously supported by publishers Palgrave Macmillan, is awarded to the author of an EPS article which contributes to the understanding of new trends

ECPR governance

Martin Bull
ECPR Director

ECPR Director

In September 2013, Martin Bull (University of Salford) was appointed as the ECPR's first Director. Professor Bull oversees the running of the Central Services, directs ECPR operations, and advises and assists the EC with the organisation's strategic direction.

Professor Bull has considerable experience in ECPR matters, having served as its Academic Director 2006 – 2013, and on its Executive Committee 2003 – 2006.

ECPR Chair

The Chair is elected by the Executive Committee every three years coinciding with the changeover between Committees, and as such they serve a three year term. The current Chair is Rudy Andeweg (Universiteit Leiden) who will serve until April 2018. The Chair takes the lead in the strategic direction of the organisation and works closely with the Vice Chair and Treasurer, as well as chairing meetings of the Executive Committee.

In recognition of the need to have a Chair experienced in ECPR business, in the preceding autumn the outgoing EC elects a Chair Designate from those members who have another three years to serve.

Rudy Andeweg
ECPR Chair

The ECPR's Executive Committee (EC) is a Board of twelve Trustees, elected by the Council of Official Representatives. The EC, which meets twice a year, is responsible for the day-to-day running of the ECPR, as well as its long-term strategic development. To make this task more manageable, members are grouped into five portfolios covering the spectrum of ECPR's work.

Drawn from ECPR Full-Member institutions, EC members are elected for a six-year term, staggered so that six members are elected every three years.

To find out more about the current EC, go to www.ecpr.eu and click the 'Executive Committee' link at the bottom of the page.

ECPR Council

David Farrell
Speaker of Council

Membership

ECPR membership is institutional and is open to any university involved in the teaching or research of political science. Membership entitles staff and students at member institutions to benefits that include funding, reduced event fees and access to ECPR publications. The ECPR currently has 350 institutional members worldwide, including 48 of the top 50 European universities according to the QS World Rankings 2016. This figure grows steadily each year and equates to a network of some 19,000 political science scholars worldwide with MyECPR accounts.

The ECPR's highest level of governance is its Council, comprised of one Official Representative from each member institution. Council performs a number of functions, including electing the ECPR's Executive Committee (EC) every three years, receiving annual reports from the EC and voting on elements of constitutional reform.

Council meets once a year, at the General Conference, and as such will meet this year in Prague on Friday between 18:00 and 19:00. A Reception for Council members will follow at 19:00.

ECPR Council Meeting

Date Friday 9 September

Time 18:00 – 19:00

Venue FA104, Faculty of Arts

The Council meeting will be followed by a Reception, from 19:00 in the cafeteria on the ground floor, Faculty of Arts

Speaker of Council

The Speaker of Council holds a number of responsibilities including chairing Council meetings; proposing amendments to the Standing Orders of Council; liaising with the Executive Committee over business matters and the formulation of the agenda of Council meetings; serving as Senior Returning Officer for Executive Committee elections and votes on amending the ECPR Constitution; being a general liaison point for members of Council vis-à-vis the ECPR. Professor David Farrell, MRIA, holds the Chair of Politics at University College Dublin.

Getting around the city

Your free tickets

You should have received four free public transport tickets when you registered in Prague. These are valid for four days, 7–10 September, on trams, metro and buses for zones P, 0, B (in Prague area) except for PIT trains. For more about zones, see www.dpp.cz/en/fares-in-prague/

Tickets and Passes

Single-Trip Tickets

The transport system uses two types of single-trip tickets (children under six go free):

30-minute ticket

Adults 24 CZK
Children 6–15 years 12 CZK

90-minute ticket

Adults 32 CZK
Children 6–15 years 16 CZK

You can buy a 90-minute ticket directly from the driver for 40 CZK.

Tickets are valid on any public transport and allow transfers between lines (subway to subway, tram to tram, etc) and different types of transport (subway to tram, etc).

Buy tickets at yellow ticket vending machines (also in English, coins only), at ticket offices at some metro stations, at a Tabák/Trafika, at some newsstands, and at tourist information centres. You can also buy tickets by texting DPT24 or DPT32 to 902 06. You should receive your ticket within one minute.

Tickets must be punched/validated at metro station entrances and on the tram/bus.

If you requested a ticket by SMS, you must have received your ticket before you enter the vehicle or the paid zone on the underground.

Short-term tourist passes

24-hour pass Adults 110 CZK
Children 6–15 years 55 CZK

3-day pass (72 hours) 310 CZK.

Sold at ticket offices in certain metro stations Dejvická, Hradčanská, Můstek, Florenc, Hlavní nádraží, Nádraží Holešovice, Náměstí Míru) and at tourist information centres. Usually open 06:30–18:30; some close for lunch.

Metro

The metro runs 05:00–midnight daily.

Line A (green) runs from the north-western side of the city at Dejvická to the east at Depo Hostivař.

Line B (yellow) runs from the south-west at Zličín to the northeast at Černý Most.

Line C (red) runs from the north at Letňany to the southeast at Háje.

There are three transfer stations in the city centre where two subway lines intersect:

Můstek (lower end of Wenceslas Square) – lines A and B intersect

Muzeum (upper end of Wenceslas Square) – lines A and C intersect

Florenc (main bus station) – lines B and C intersect

Convenient stops for visitors include Staroměstská (Old Town Square), Malostranská (Malá Strana), Můstek (Wenceslas Square), Muzeum (National Museum), and Hlavní nádraží (main train station). After the metro closes, night trams (51 to 58) cross the city about every 40 minutes. Only full-price 32 CZK (about €1.50) tickets are valid on these services.

Trams

With 500km of tracks, tramvaje cover a large area of Prague. Daytime trams run 04:30 until midnight at 8–10-minute intervals (8–15 minutes on weekends). Night trams 51–58 run 00:30–04:30 at 40-minute intervals.

Tram 22 follows one of Prague's most scenic routes, passing by the National Theatre to Staroměstská and Malostranská metro stations, and continuing up to the Belvedér, Prague Castle and Pohořelec, with some stunning views along the way.

The Nostalgic Tram no. 91 (nostalgická linka č. 91) is an historic tram that runs on weekends and holidays from April until mid-November. The tram leaves from Vozovna Sřešovice every hour from 12:00–17:30 and continues through the city centre. 35 CZK for adults and 20 CZK for children under 15.

Our Network promotes interaction, support and idea exchange between junior researchers in politics and social sciences, giving graduate students access to a global network of scholars.

Join the Graduate Student Network, and you can build those crucial first networks, collaborate with colleagues in your field, learn about activities and services that could enhance your career, and keep up to date with developments in the profession.

Membership is FREE and open to any graduate student, PhD candidate or postdoctoral researcher. Email gsn@ecpr.eu to get on the mailing list. To join our Network, visit www.ecpr.eu and log in to MyECPR (or register if you don't have an account). Click the GSN tab, then 'Join Standing Group'.

We'll be organising a social event during the Conference; details to be announced. Check the ECPR website, social media and the Conference app for updates!

Much more in store: our plans for the future

Exciting developments for the GSN over the next few years include:

- An online database so you can contact and be contacted by scholars with related interests
- Online news boards with information about GSN conferences, summer schools, funding, calls for papers, etc
- Graduate development panels and social events at ECPR conferences
- Promotion of ECPR Prizes: The Jean Blondel PhD Prize, awarded to an outstanding PhD thesis; The Hans Daalder Prize, awarded to the best paper presented at the Graduate Student Conference; and at the ECPR Summer School, The Cora Maas Award for the best-evaluated Course, and The Dirk Berg-Schlosser Award for the best poster
- Opportunities to publish with ECPR Press, which adapts outstanding PhD theses for publication in book form
- Chances to contribute to the academic organisation of the biennial Graduate Student Conference, next held in 2018

Meet the Committee

The GSN is overseen and directed by a Co-ordinating Committee of graduate students – see below for our current members. This Committee is also closely involved in the organisation of the biennial ECPR Graduate Student Conference.

Roundtable 1

*Still Post-Communist?
Central Europe a Quarter of a Century
after the First Free Elections*

14:00 – 15:30, Thursday 8
September, Faculty of Law FL100

Are democratic systems and their institutions in Central Europe working properly? Do political parties in the region carry out their functions? What are the peculiarities of political participation in the region? What kind of experience can be drawn from the past two or three decades of democratic development of Central Europe – and what recommendations can be made for the future?

This Roundtable addresses these questions in comparison with West European countries: Are Central European countries (their polities and societies) standard in the sense that they do not differ qualitatively from West European countries? Should variations be looked for between West and Central Europe, or rather among single European countries irrespective of their position in 1989? And finally, is the adjective ‘post-communist’ still relevant for Central European democracies?

Roundtable 2

*Professional Ethics
in Political Science*

14:00 – 15:30, Thursday 8
September, Faculty of Law FL300

The political science community was shocked last year, when a paper published in Science was retracted because it was at least partly based on fabricated data.

In the ensuing debate, colleagues wondered whether enough is being done to prevent fabrication, falsification, and plagiarism in American political science, but in this respect European political science is lagging even further behind.

This Roundtable raises awareness of the ethical dimension of our discipline, and considers what must be done to maintain ethical standards in European political science.

Roundtable 3

Under Pressure: International Institutions and Global Power Shifts

16:00 – 17:30, Friday 9 September,
Faculty of Arts FA131

How states relate to each other in a globalised world is determined to a certain extent by their ability to cooperate with intergovernmental institutions such as the United Nations Security Council, World Bank, IMF and WTO. Perhaps with the exception of the main UN bodies, intergovernmental organisations have since their creation been dominated by powers from the global North.

In the last years and decades, however, the world has been witnessing major southward shifts of power. Increasingly, the rising powers (especially the BRICS countries) are asking for a larger say in how rules for the world are made. Global institutions are being challenged from within, by states who claim to represent larger shares of the world population than the traditional powers, and who demonstrate their increasing readiness to invest political capital into global political affairs.

Will the major intergovernmental institutions be able to handle the changed balance of power across their members? Will they simply become more representative of the interests of humankind at large? Or will they turn into talking shops, stuck in endless quarrels between the traditional powers and their challengers?

The answers to these questions will determine what politics will look like in the twenty-first century. This Roundtable brings together scholars who will comment on the problems of global governance under pressure and illustrate them with empirical examples from their respective areas of expertise.

Roundtable 4

Gender in Political Science Research: Achievements and Outlook

16:00 – 17:30, Friday 9 September, Faculty of Arts FA200

What contribution has gender as an analytical category made to political science research? What is its methodological, empirical and conceptual influence?

Scholarship generated by academics affiliated to the ECPR Standing Group on Gender & Politics (ECPG) has long demonstrated that politics and political power are indeed gendered. A gendered lens is applied across all the subfields in political science, including, most notably: political institutions, elections, political theory, human rights, public policy, social movements, peacekeeping, populism and immigration.

Scholars have provided ‘gendered’ analyses of classical concepts, such as representation and citizenship, but have also disseminated innovative perspectives such as intersectionality and queer theory.

In this Roundtable, internationally renowned academics reflect on the impact of gender in the wider discipline from the perspective of their involvement with professional organisations, top-ranked journals, and the subfields of legislative studies, gender and politics and the comparative politics of immigration and citizenship.

Last year saw more than a million migrants and refugees reach Europe, sparking a humanitarian crisis – and differing responses. While some countries welcomed migrants with open arms, others built borders.

Into 2016 the debate continues and the very principles of free movement and Schengen now seem to be in question. The Editors of the ECPR's professional journal EPS have invited four leading scholars to debate three key questions:

How can and how should Europe cope with the mass migration to the continent? Does Europe's future include the free movement of people? How is that future different from the Europe of today?

You Made Your Bed, Now Sleep In It – The Path-dependent Role of Civil Society Organizations in Local Housing Policy

Civil society organisations are central to the provision of welfare state services in many countries around the world. Moreover, many welfare states are facing similar fiscal, political, and demographic trends that create opportunities and constraints for a more substantial service and advocacy role for civil society organisations in the welfare state.

This Panel brings together three Papers that address directly the conceptual and policy implications of the enduring differences across welfare states in the role of civil society organisations, despite rising demand for many community social and health services and programmes.

Political science faces competing pressures for increased policy engagement and relevance on the one hand, and increased specialization and impact on the other. Further, general changes in the higher education environment, including limiting funding, a shift away from full-time tenured faculty, and higher expectations for performance, are creating increased challenges for political science researchers. At the same time, however, political science is becoming more diverse and internationalized, opening the discipline to new opportunities and voices. This Panel will bring together academics from across Europe and the US to discuss these trends and to explore what they mean for the future of the discipline.

World View of Russian Political Leaders: Political and Psychological Study of Public Speeches

The political psychology discipline that emerged in the US during the seventies made obvious the profound effects of psychology on many aspects of national and international political decision-making.

National and international affairs depend largely on interpersonal relations, but at least as much on the public perception of leaders. In an environment of complex decision making and complex media environments, including social networks, leaders' public perception became more influential than ever.

Content and public opinion analysis in various forms was applied to processes of public opinion formation and perception of political leaders. This may allow us to forecast undesirable developments and outcomes in international relations and at the national policy level of decision making. The idea is that monitoring of public speech may inform us about political developments that risk evolving into crisis. This holds for the use of psychological methods aimed at assessing personality in politics and public perception of political leaders. Psychological profiling of political leaders and assessment of their policy and public image may contribute to more insight in their success and failure, or sometimes allow to anticipate future events and crises.

Great expectations for democracy immediately after a change in regime often turn to frustration years later, when democratic goals have not been achieved. Frustrated expectations are inevitable in any radical transformation, and an accurate evaluation of postcommunist reform can only be possible two or three decades after regime change.

Many former communist countries became members of EU and NATO. Others grew weak, fragile or failed entirely. State building and democracy building were separate processes; there was a lack of accountability when building institutions.

This Panel asks: What is the role of sequencing in political transitions of states, modes of governance and regimes? What role do political parties play in the formation of clientelistic networks? Why, in post-transition countries, are political parties often interpreted as a risk for further democratic development? Can democracy defend itself in a post-transition period? And are new typologies of militant democracies useful for analysing political regimes' potential to fall, or to regenerate?

Scholarly communication is undergoing momentous change, in the context of multiplying publication channels, electronic formats and Open Access. Yet books have been overshadowed in debates about the associated challenges facing political science, even though they have been formative for the discipline.

This Panel brings together stakeholders in political science scholarship to explore three questions: One, what is the current status of the book in contemporary political science, in terms of contributing to debates, reaching readers, attracting citations and gaining promotion? Two, what is the role of books in the research we publish: how does the extended format and materiality of print books shape ideas and work in individual projects and broader debates? Three, how do emerging trends and models of digital books and Open Access obstruct or offer ways of developing the elements of long-form research communication that are of value to the study of politics?

Democracy in Europe is under pressure. The financial crisis has strained relationships between ordinary citizens and their elected representatives. Many European countries have swung, in some cases decisively, to the right – weakening the architecture of democracy. Constitutional courts are being undermined, press freedom curtailed and public spheres increasingly polarised. And then there are the political upheavals and social divisions that Brexit is bringing in its wake.

These problems present a serious challenge to proponents of deliberative democracy: the space for free, open and inclusive debate seems to be shrinking fast, along with the conditions that support it.

To address these challenges, the Panel takes as its starting point arguments presented in a recent ECPR Press publication, Constitutional Deliberative Democracy in Europe (below), edited by Min Reuchamps and Jane Suiter.

The Panel will reconsider those arguments in the light of recent political developments. It also seeks to map out a future research agenda for deliberative scholars interested in the future prospects for democracy in Europe. Emerging local, national and regional challenges will be highlighted and deliberative approaches and solutions assessed.

Boost your skills at the ECPR Methods School

The ECPR's Winter and Summer Schools in Methods and Techniques offer world-leading training in research methods for political science and neighbouring disciplines

Good research requires a solid methodology; a belief key to the aims of the ECPR and the reason for the creation of its Methods School. Launched in 2006, the ECPR's Summer School in Methods and Techniques quickly established itself as a leading event of its kind, paving the way for the first Winter School, in 2011.

More than 700 participants from across Europe and beyond have attended the last two Methods School events (the 2015 Summer School and 2016 Winter School). Besides a majority of PhD students, participants include a growing proportion of postdoctoral researchers and tenure-track or more senior scholars.

Holistic training

The School's philosophy is to offer up-to-date training across the whole range of methodologies, and across different paradigms and approaches. By combining the Winter and Summer School, researchers can follow a diverse training track of introductory and advanced courses, in various formats.

Salient methods

Delivered by experienced Instructors and supported by dedicated Teaching Assistants, the School gives researchers the methodological skills they need at different stages of their career, while a lively plenary programme encompassing free course tasters, poster sessions, and the popular 'brown bag' events, complement the academic components.

Covering methods particularly salient for research in political science, the School caters to the needs of research at macro and micro levels. Courses cover quantitative and qualitative designs, and positivist and interpretative perspectives.

The Methods School involves intensive courses and lab sessions, which require a strong commitment from participants.

“good research requires good methodology, a belief key to the ECPR's aims

Certification

ECTS Credits are granted by the SSMT and WSMT host institutions. If you attend at least eighty per cent of course hours, the ECPR can issue a Certificate of Attendance.

Location, location

Following a three-year residency at the University of Vienna, in 2015 the Winter School moved to the Bamberg Graduate School of Social Sciences in Germany, where it is set to remain until 2020.

The Summer School takes place every July/August. Following a hugely successful ten years at the University of Ljubljana, from 2016 the event began a three-year residency at Central European University (Budapest), an internationally renowned research university with strong methods expertise.

Loyalty discount

Perhaps you took a course at this year's Summer School? Extend your studies to an advanced course in Bamberg and you'll benefit from a continuation of the expert teaching you received in Budapest, AND we'll throw in a loyalty discount! Visit www.ecpr.eu to see a full course list; registration opens 5 October 2016.

Levi Littvay,
Derek Beach

Professor of Political Science at the Université catholique de Louvain, Benoît Rihoux has taught comparative methods in institutions across the world. He is involved in numerous research projects on topics of specialisation (political parties, social movements, organisational change) as well as crises, community conflicts, national and European policies, organisational innovation, environmental risks, natural resource management, and policy evaluation.

Levente (Levi) Littvay is Associate Professor of Political Science at Central European University

Budapest. He teaches mainly MA and PhD courses on applied statistics, with occasional topical classes such as elections, voting behaviour, experimental political science, political psychology and American politics. He has secured over €500,000 in funds for research on survey and quantitative methodology, twin and family studies, and the psychology of populist attitudes.

Derek Beach is Associate Professor of Political Science at the University of Aarhus, where he teaches international relations and methodology. He has published on international negotiations, referendums, and European integration. His books include Process-tracing Methods: Foundations and Guidelines and Causal Case Studies: Foundations and Guidelines for Comparing, Matching and Tracing.

Gender diversity survey

ECPR is gathering sex-segregated data for event attendance, for submission and publication in ECPR journals and books, and for involvement in our government and leadership.

Would you take a moment to update your MyECPR profile to include your gender? Just to go www.ecpr.eu and click Login in the top right-hand corner. Then choose My Profile from the MyECPR drop-down menu. Thank you!

MyECPR housekeeping: help us help you!

Please keep your institution and email address up to date. That way, we don't waste members' money trying to contact dormant accounts, and you won't miss out on early-bird bargains. Clean data also means our communications can be streamlined and better targeted to your needs. Did you know that you can use the Research Interests field under My Profile to let us know your particular areas of study? This data helps us improve the accuracy and relevance of keyword indexes like the one on this page.

Might you have more than one historical MyECPR account associated with an email address you no longer use? (Don't be shy; it's quite common.) Contact support@ecpr.eu to let us know, and we can merge the data in this account with your live one, no problem.

	In 2004, Barbara Budrich founded her press because she believed in the great value social sciences can have for society. Barbara Budrich Publishers are convinced that most of the problems societies all across the globe are facing today can be explained and ultimately solved with the knowledge social sciences provide. Demographic change, migration, integration, social and educational inequality – these are just a few of the vast issues social sciences help to answer. The Budrich book list and journals offer top quality research in the social sciences and humanities, specifically in Political Science, International Relations, Gender, Sociology, Social Work, Public Policy, Educational Research and Pedagogy. www.barbara-budrich.net

Split-Ticket Voting in Mixed-Member Electoral Systems

Carolina Plescia

Why, when offered two votes to elect the same representative body, would a voter support two different parties? In her Blondel Prize-winning book, Carolina Plescia studies the phenomenon of split-ticket voting across ten democracies. Combining theoretical investigation with methodological analysis, she builds a profile of a 'simple' voter with 'sophisticated' preferences. Parties still function as the principal cue for voting, but it seems that voters often like more than one party or choose candidates regardless of their party affiliation.

25th Anniversary Edition People, States & Fear: An Agenda for International Security Studies in the Post-Cold War Era

Barry Buzan

This acclaimed book examines how states and societies pursue freedom from threat where competitive relations are inescapable across the political, economic, military, societal and environmental landscapes. Buzan focuses on the interplay of threats and vulnerabilities, the policy consequences of overemphasising one or the other, and the contradictions within ideas about security. Buzan's landmark book remains as vital today as when it was first published.

Constitutional Deliberative Democracy in Europe

Min Reuchamps
Jane Suiter (Eds)

From small-scale experiments, deliberative mini-publics have recently taken a constitutional turn in Europe. At the same time, European institutions have introduced different forms of deliberative democracy as a way to connect citizens back in. This book critically assesses these developments, bringing together academics involved in the designing of these new forms of constitutional deliberative democracy with the theorists who propagated the ideas and evaluated democratic standards.

*A Responsive Technocracy?
EU Politicisation and the Consumer Policies of the European Commission*

Christian Rau

Rau challenges the common perception of the Commission as an insulated technocracy immune to political pressure. He shows how European integration has become increasingly politicised, so that the Commission now cares much more about the public appeal of its policies. Based on insider accounts, a comparative analysis of 17 policy-formulation processes indicates that the Commission's choices do indeed become more consumer friendly under higher levels of public awareness.

*Citizens in Europe:
Essays on Democracy,
Constitutionalism and European Integration*

Claus Offe
Ulrich K. Preuß

Interdisciplinary essays by a constitutionalist and a political sociologist examining how fragmented societies can be held together by constitutional arrangements providing for bonds of democratic citizenship. The authors address moral and institutional prerequisites on which the deepening of European integration depends. The desirability of such deepening is now contested, with some states' membership, and EU treaty compliance, at stake.

*Judicial Politics and International Cooperation:
From Disputes to Deal-
Making at the World Trade Organization*

Arlo Poletti
Dirk De Bièvre

Judicial politics has emerged as a central feature of the multilateral trading system alongside a steep decline in the WTO's ability to deliver negotiated trade liberalisation. This book advances innovative arguments and presents original evidence to shed light on the important and surprisingly under-researched question of whether, and how, judicial politics has affected the prospects for cooperation in the WTO through multilateral trade rounds.

Political Science: Reflecting on Concepts, Demystifying Legends

With an Introduction by John Trent

2016. 133 pp. Pb. 24,90 € (D), 25,60 € (A), US$36.95, GBP 21.95
ISBN 978-3-8474-0506-1, eISBN 978-3-8474-0928-1, 18,99 €

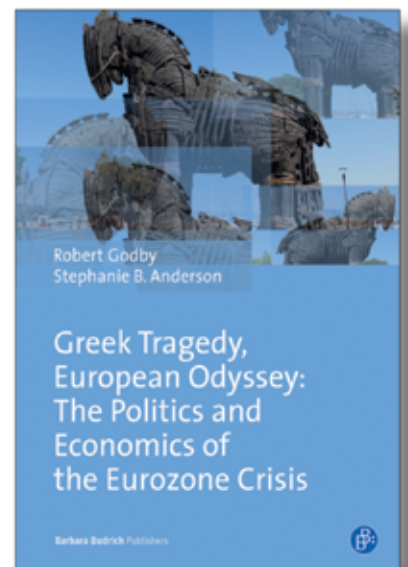

Rainer Eisfeld's book highlights the merits of socio-historical research into topics infrequently covered by mainstream political science. Directing attention to the need for carefully scrutinizing the convenient "truths" of established – post-Nazi, post-Communist – political narratives, its chapters encourage reflection of the discipline's history and state of the art.

Greek Tragedy, European Odyssey: The Politics and Economics of the Eurozone Crisis

2016. 209 pp. Pb. 28,00 € (D), 28,80 € (A), GBP 24.95, US$40.00
ISBN 978-3-8474-0618-1, eISBN 978-3-8474-0431-6, 20,99 €

Debate among politicians and academics alike vacillates as to whether the euro is the crowning achievement of a half-century of European integration efforts, or now constitutes a force that threatens to drive European Union member states apart. This book introduces both the political and economic forces at play in the eurozone crisis that have shaped this debate and changed the face of European integration.

ERIS – European Review of International Studies

ISSN 2196-6923 | ISSN Online 2196-7415

Volume 3, 2016

Published three times a year | Apr. - Aug. - Nov. (incl. one special issue)

Language: English

The European Review of International Studies (ERIS) seeks to be a journal to which those who wish to know what is happening in 'European' International Relations can turn. It aims to achieve this goal by an extensive review section of monographs published in European languages and review articles of the literature on substantive themes or significant developments in different European academic communities. Its other principal goal is to publish original articles and from time to time translations of existing major articles not readily available in English.

A – Z index of participants

In this index you will find all participants who had paid to attend the Conference by Thursday 28 July 2016.

Non-attending co-authors of multiple-authored Papers are also listed, provided the Paper presenter had registered and paid by the cut-off date.

WE SEE TEXT ANALYSIS
DIFFERENTLY. SO WILL YOU.

The intangible becomes insightful. From disorder, we create structure. To confusion, we bring clarity. And the formerly invisible is brought into focus as superior knowledge and understanding.

25th IPSA World Congress of Political Science Brisbane Australia

Borders and Margins

It is with great pleasure that we invite our colleagues and collaborators throughout the world to Brisbane, Australia for the 25th IPSA World Congress of Political Science.

The Congress will provide an opportunity for you to network with global scholars. It will have particularly strong local and regional representation, because it will integrate the annual conference of the Australian Political Studies Association and the biennial Oceanic Conference on International Studies.

Professor Katharine Gelber, LOC Chair

The Congress will have a rich program under the theme 'Borders and Margins', which will be coordinated by the Program Co-Chairs Professor Terrell Carver and Professor Füsün Türkmen. Keep an eye out for the call for panels in mid-2017, and for papers shortly afterwards.

Brisbane and its surroundings are rich in natural beauty and cultural heritage. For those with time for pre-or-post Congress exploring, Brisbane is the gateway to iconic travel locations including Uluru, the Great Barrier Reef and Kakadu.

So please reserve the dates of 21-26 July 2018 in your calendar.

We look forward to hosting you in Brisbane in 2018.

Local Organising Committee

- Professor Katharine Gelber, University of Queensland (Chair, LOC)
- Professor A J Brown, Griffith University
